The Gateway to Downtown Davis, Davis Commons is situated at the southwest corner of 1st and E Streets at Richards Boulevard in the heart of the Davis trade area. This ±44,096 square foot neighborhood center is an architecturally award-winning urban retail center that benefits from its unmatched visual prominence.

Davis Commons is situated at the busiest intersection in the community. Richards Boulevard is the main access to downtown from Interstate 80 and the principal commute corridor for the University's ±36,400 students and approximately 23,800 employees.

The population within the three-mile trade area is young, educated and affluent. The median age is 24, and 63.65% of adults have graduated from college with a Bachelor's degree or higher. According to the local Chamber of Commerce, Davis boasts the highest per capita percentage of doctoral degrees in the nation. The trade area has one of the most favorable demographic profiles in the four-county region. The average family household income within a 3-mile radius is $126,409.

Davis Commons is a highly innovative project, both in design and concept. The buildings are clustered around a one-acre, semi-circular park at the busiest intersection in Davis, California. The storefronts open onto the park and a large plaza furnished with tables, chairs and umbrellas. Adjacent to the park is the UC Davis Arboretum, a nationally recognized collection of rare plants cultivated by the University, which culminates in a demonstration garden and nursery at Davis Commons. This junction of commercial, education and recreation uses in a central urban location has been recognized nationally for its uniqueness.

The Davis Commons site is an important central location in the downtown—it's the first shopping center that people see on entering the downtown and the last thing they see when leaving. Like other successful urban streetscapes—4th Street in Berkeley, Chestnut Street, Burlingame Avenue—the Davis Commons offers both urban sophistication and pedestrian amenities. It provides over 205 parking spaces, giving it the best field of parking in the downtown core.
